Decentralization is the process of dispersing decision-making governance closer to the people and/or citizens. It includes the dispersal of administration or governance in sectors or areas like engineering, management science, political science, political economy, sociology, and economics. Decentralization is also possible in the dispersal of population and employment.

Excellent Happy Home Ward

Quote on the winning initiative:

Excellent Happy Home Ward is an innovation that helps improve the quality of life of people in the community, including health, technology, activities and the qualities [of the] surrounding environment. This model benefits consumers on accessing their learning and problem-solving skills. This innovation is considered as a service relating to the context of 'way of life' and the value of human community through social shaping."
